Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

NO PRISONERS, CLOSES JAILS

SYDNEY, November 6.—The story of the annual meeting of the Prisoners' Aid Society, some remarkable figures were given by the minister for justice, Mr. Hall. He said:

"Within the last few years the government has closed 26 prisons in the state for the reason that there were no prisoners to fill them, and that 26 included such big prisons as Berrima and Trial Bay, while only one new prison had been opened—the Long Ray reformatory. In 1895 when there was less than 1,000,000 in New South Wales, there were over 2,500 persons in the gaols; now when there was a population of 1,600,000 there were less than half the number of people in the prisons that there was in 1895."

Lord Chelmsford, state governor, who presided, also quoted interesting figures taken from the books of the Prisoners' Aid Society.

Out of 350 applications during the past year 243 people discharged from gaol had been assisted and 151 of them found employment, only one out of that last number coming back into the clutches of the law. It was remarkable that in 10 1-2 years only 324 out of 2,880 people assisted, again broke the law. Since its inception the association had aided 4,871 first offenders.

"It was a great thing for New South Wales that she had a law which enabled men to be released on license and given a chance to lead a decent life again. He had noticed it again and again, and was very pleased to see it—the trait in the Australian character which said 'Give him a chance.' Every Australian always wished to give a man a chance if possible, and so there seemed to him never wanting people to come forward and give another chance to men discharged from gaol, when the Prisoners' Aid Society so advised."

STRANGE WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS

Stockings figure in some curious superstitions touching old customs, especially those connected with marriage. Every one knows that there are actions both lucky and unlucky. Among the former it is commonly held that to put on any right article of clothing wrong side out is decidedly a sign of good luck, but it must be done accidentally, and when the mistake is found out no change must be made, else the luck will immediately vanish. This idea is very firmly held about stockings, probably because it is more easy to make such a mistake in putting on stockings than in donning other garments. It would be hard, indeed, for a woman to put on her dress or a man his coat or vest inside out without noticing what he was doing.

Another superstition touching the use of hose is connected with dreaming. This is a Scotch notion. If a person be about to sleep in a bed that he or she has never slept in before, the certainty of dreaming can be assured by placing the stocking taken off the right foot under the head. Not only will the sleeper be sure to dream but the dream will certainly come to pass.

Of the superstitions attached to marriage ceremonies, most people have heard of "throwing the stocking." This rite would hardly be regarded now as consistent with modern notions of decorum, but it was highly popular in former days. The ceremony was performed at the conclusion of the wedding day's festivities by young men and girls seated at the bed-foot—the former having the bride's and the latter the bridegroom's stockings—whose object in throwing the hose backward over their heads was to hit, if possible, the head, and especially the nose, of one or other of the newly-married couple. A successful shot meant marriage at an early date for the thrower.

THE RUBBER CHEMIST

The rubber chemist has at last come into his own. Fifteen years ago only a few rubber manufacturing concerns employed an expert chemist, but all that has been changed, and now, with the exception of the small manufacturers, the rubber chemist is a recognized member of all rubber manufacturing enterprises. There are three reasons for this change. The first is the great increase in the importance and value of rubber manufacture in this country. In fifteen years' time the value of the annual product of our American factories has risen from $55,000,000 to over $220,000,000. The second reason to which may be ascribed the rise of the rubber chemist is the great development that has taken place in the last decade and a half in rubber planting. Fifteen years ago the produce of the rubber plantations was so small as to be quite negligible. Last year, the product of the rubber plantations amounted to over 14,000 tons, and is likely in three years' time to be almost three times its present size. The third reason for the rapidly increasing importance of the rubber chemist is the prominent position that in commerce at least in the thought and attention of the rubber world. The work of the rubber chemist may be divided properly into two departments. One concerned with the production of crude rubber, and the other with its utilization in manufacturing processes. Before the advent of plantation rubber there was very little in the field of rubber products that the rubber chemist could interest himself in to advantage. The natural home of wild rubber among the inaccessible jungles along the Amazon made it practically impossible for the white man to give this problem adequate study, but with the development of plantation rubber the situation has distinctly changed, for in the plantation the expert cannot only live with perfect safety, but he can work with every comfort—in India Rubber World.

P. L. RICE QUILTS.

The resignation of Philip L. Rice, clerk of the court of the Fifth circuit, Kauai, has been placed in the hands of Hon. Judge Lyle Dickey, to become effective January 1. Mr. Rice's law practice has grown to such proportion as to require more time than he can devote to it under the present arrangement, hence his resignation. He has filled the position as clerk of the court in a manner which will require a good man to maintain the record.

Rev. John A. McElwain, pastor emeritus of the Clarendon street Baptist church, Boston, died at his home recently. Gas which escaped from a heater in a lodging house at Haverhill, Mass., caused the death of Frank Chaffin, a coachman, and Miss Molly Leary, a housemaid.
